What kind of place is the "Writing Center"?

You can find the Writing Center beside the circulation desk on the 1st floor of Central Library.

Please check here for detailed information on the Writing center.→

For those of you writing graduation and masters' theses, deadline season is coming! There must be some of you growing restless and starting, right? If either of these things sound like you, then we recommend visiting the Writing Center!

At the writing center, there are many different services for you to try, all offered by Hiroshima University students and faculty. This time we will introduce "Writing Tutorials" and "Consultation on Research Papers".

Writing Tutorials

Recommended for those having trouble with theses and reports!

Graduate school student tutors offer writing tutorial services in English and Japanese to support students who want to improve their academic writing (reports, seminar presentation materials, theses, etc.). There are three different types of services: Face-to-face, Online, and Drop Off. Please try whichever service suits your needs!

Consultation on Research Papers

Recommended for those having trouble with English language journal submissions!

Full-time Writing Center faculty and the Writing Advisor Fellow offer consultation on how to write journal submissions and presentation scripts. You can choose between English-speaking staff and Japanese speaking staff, so please choose which language suits your needs!

This Month's Antique Book

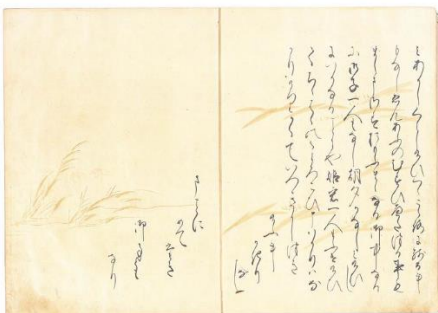

『Hachikatsuki』 (Nara Ehon)

"Hachikadzuki" is one of the most famous of the Otogi-zoshi (a group of 350 narratives written in the Muromachi period). Hiroshima University is in possession of this text, one of the most widely read and widely used copies of the story.

It seems that more pages were planned and never completed, thus there are many pages left blank in the manuscript. There is no inscription, copyist credit, or even copy date. However, part of the fun of this manuscript is trying to determine this lost knowledge through the shape of the letters and kana usage!

You can browse this book in the HU Library Digital Archive→
